Labor Day revisited again at Soapstone

It all started on Labor Day 41 years ago.

The Buttrill family, the new owners of a mountainous piece of land in the Soapstone Community started inviting their friends and neighbors to celebrate their new home with food and fellowship.

It continues today. It all started when Marcus and Mattie Elizabeth Buttrill made Claude Kimsey an offer he couldn't refuse back in the late 1960s for a piece of land more popularly referred to as Soapstone.

Since then, the Buttrill family has grown. Pappy and Pat's children all have completed the same journey that their parents before them achieved, 50-plus years of marriage.

On Saturday, the

Buttrills, their friends and neighbors came together again to celebrate the last rites of summer at Soapstone.

More than 75 people gathered to feast on ribs, baked beans, bread, slaw, pickles and delicious desserts.

The day started with a trout fishing adventure and ended with everyone pitching in to clean up the day's festive labors.

"Marc cut grass for three days so people could come out and enjoy this day," said Athelyn Buttrill, referring to her husband's labor contribution to the event.

"It's been great," Marc Buttrill said. "What gives us a good feeling is when all these people turn out and have a good time."

Folks left The Ridges Resort on Sunday night proclaiming they had seen the "greatest fireworks show on earth."

Fireworks are a key ingredient to The Ridges' community-oriented approach to celebrating the Towns County community, General Manager Chad Hooper said.

Hooper was all smiles Sunday night as the hundreds who came to witness the first Fire on the Water event, a celebration of Labor Day walked away in a euphoric buzz.

"It was a great event," he said. "Starting out this morning, I knew we were going to have a good day and a good evening. The crowd was extremely healthy in terms of numbers."

"For two weeks of putting this thing together, we saw a large number of people on the property, on the water - the lake was full of boats. We did a lot of meals. This is going to be a continuous event at The Ridges."

Ricky Smith, a Towns County native was excited about the event.

"Man, this was a great fireworks show," he said. "This event is a plus to our community. The food was great and I look forward to eating a lot more meals at The Oaks. I really appreciate them putting on this event. The fireworks were the best I've ever seen."

The Ridges looks strong again, flush with new ownership and an excited work force.

"There were several hundred people here tonight, so it was pretty busy," said Darrell Boles, executive

Free shots at Towns Health Department

Towns County teenagers and adults - regardless of insurance status or income level - can receive free vaccinations at the Towns County Health Department.

Vaccinations for teenagers are Tdap, Menaetra, VZV, and HPV. Vaccinations for adults are Tdap, HPV, Hep A, Hep B, MMR, Pneu, and VZV.

The vaccinations are at no charge to those living in Towns County due to a grant from the State of Georgia. That is a savings of hundreds of dollars, which is very meaningful in the present economy. One example, the chicken pox shot is being given to adults 19 and older who have never had a case of chicken pox. That is usually about a $150 shot.

Julie Green, a Immunization Coordinator in the North Georgia area, stresses the importance of having current vaccinations and the benefits of it being at no cost.

"The health departments in our area are hoping this program can run through December, but when the money runs out, the program is over," said Green. "We do have a lot of vaccine here and we have ordered a lot of vaccine. If that money does not come here, it will go elsewhere. We are trying to get as many
