Softball: Washington-Wilkes survives at Towns

By Shelly Knight
Staff Writer
Towns County Herald

The Lady Indians fell against Washington Wilkes 8-5 last Tuesday, Sept. 24th. Naturally, Thursday's game at Lincoln County was cancelled due to Hurricane Helene.

Scotlyn Fain batted 3 out of 4 scored with 2 runs and nabbed a stolen base. Jaycie Cross swatted 1 out of 4, had an RBI, swiped a base and scored a run. Taylor Mulkey whacked 1 out of 3 with a run scored. Alexa Keys added an RBI on a fielder's choice.

"We dropped a tough one last Tuesday," said Towns County head coach Clay Livingston. "We were in the game all the way through, we just couldn't quite get it done. We left too many runners in scoring position. That ended up being the difference in the game. They had more timely hits than us."

"I was really proud of how clean a game we played, making most of the routine plays in the field. There are still some mental lapses that cost us here and there, but the girls are learning from each mistake. Jaycie (Cross) was great again for us in the circle. The stats won't really tell that story."

"There were some swinging bunts and bloopers into the outfield that really hurt us. But Cross kept making pitches and giving us opportunities to shut down big innings. I think the most we gave up in any inning was 2 runs."

"[Offensively] They didn't give Alaina (Murphy) much to hit and I don't blame them, honestly," he said. "She has been on a tear. She still reached base 3 times via walks, but we need her to drive runners in. It was definitely one of the better games we've played all year, if not the best. And we need to build on that moving forward."

The next scheduled game is Oct. 1 against Athens Christian at 5 p.m. here at Lowell Nicholson Field.

Tickets can be purchased online at GoFans or at the gate.
